

ABSTRACT

A cell with cellular immunity induced by reacting in vitro a complex comprising a hydrophobized polysaccharide, such as a polysaccharide modified with an alkyl group or a sterol residue, and an antigen with an antigen-presenting cell such as a dendritic cell. The antigen-presenting cell has cellular immunity induced more efficiently than conventional vaccines, and is useful for a cell therapy.

T06020"9T628250